Marilyn Stephens:

What an amazing adventure!

Six friends from rural Nebraska decide to explore NYC with Women of the Midwest through Executive Travel. From the start, this trip was such a great experience. It was so fun getting to know our fellow adventurers from the Midwest and a few coming from farther places in the U.S.

We visited many of the “must-see” places in New York City: 9/11 Memorial & Museum, Statue of Liberty, Top of the Rock (Rockefeller Center) at night, the brand-new Vanderbilt Ascent, and of course the famous Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall, just to name a few.

Our group decided to enjoy the “Tina” Broadway Show, which was just fabulous, and others took in many other shows. We never heard anything negative about any of the productions, and it sounded like all shows attended were amazing! Our group decided to watch the Nebraska football game that Saturday at Mustang Harry’s NYC. We didn’t win (DANG!), but it was a really fun experience!

Our tour ambassador, Barb, was the best. She is so knowledgeable, talented, helpful, and kind. She added a personal, hands-on touch that made our trip even more amazing. Our wonderful hotel was half a block from Times Square and a very short walk to the Broadway Shows. Transportation was totally convenient, by bus for group or nearby subway stop for those venturing out on their own or in smaller groups. Barb was so available to participate in our adventures or help plan any that she couldn’t personally accompany. (She couldn’t clone herself to go 2 or 3 directions at once, although it seemed she would have if she could.) Our little group of 6 came home after a fantastic time, a bit tired but feeling like we had just had the best adventure! We all agree ...we HIGHLY recommend!

Gratefully, Marilyn

What I liked about traveling with Women of the Midwest:

In early November, I went on a trip to NYC with Women of the Midwest. It was fabulous; they took care of booking the flight, transportation to and from the airport, breakfast every day, and a beautiful hotel on Times Square.

There were planned group events, but the schedule also allowed free time to explore independently. Our ambassador worked very hard to keep track of everyone and make sure everyone was included in something.

But the best part was having a small group! We had a group of 21, including our ambassador. With a small group, you get acquainted, know everyone’s name, and by the end of 5 days, it was like we were on a trip having fun with 21 of our best friends.

I’m sure some friendships were made that will carry on. I can’t wait to take another trip with Women of the Midwest!

Sincerely, Sonja
